William is ready to chop up the onions...

Too late William — Sean's got it sorted already!!!

Come on William, if you're not fast, you're last!!

Potiki's not really a stirrer, but he'll make an exception today...

Kenneth looks like he's auditioning for My Kitchen Rules... get in there and get your hands dirty, lad!!!

Kelle has either been peeling onions too—or having a meltdown... I wonder which applies...

It would be really cool if you could tune into Brent and Keil's Radio show on Radio Kidnappers (104.7FM) every Wednesday at 5pm.

Great music—interesting information and the latest DRC News.

A 'Right Royal' Employee

Check out Alisa (pictured here when she was dressed up for a right royal outing).

Alisa has been working at Duart Rest Home as a Morning Tea Assistant since July 2012.

She started off on the mainstream programme which ends in July and her employers have already told Network Personnel that they will be keeping her on with no subsidies whatsoever.

The staff and residents at Duart House love her to bits.

She does a great job setting up and serving the morning teas and residents look forward to catching up for a chat with her over a cuppa.

Alisa diligently buses from Taradale to Havelock North every week day to get to her job. She is never late and rarely misses a day at work—she just loves it.

Alisa also loves anything and everything to do with royalty so you can imagine she was quite excited about the recent royal visit.

Well done Alisa—you are a real asset and Duart Rest Home wouldn't be the same without you!!
