Hmmm....
No, there's no toe-jams in here.
Smells
sweet too!

The Heretaunga Women's Centre had ephemeral artist Susan Berry working with the community to create a unique 'footprint'. It was for "A celebration of women". The footprint was a 2.5 metre shape on the ground filled with items that were collected and brought along from the natural environment, for example, nuts, leaves, pods, soil, sticks, flowers, shells..... The footprint was created to represent our culture and sense of identity, belonging and the nature and spirit of our place in the world.

After Peter (left) gifted a photo on canvas to DRC, the CEO has commissioned Peter to do a series of photos on canvas to adorn our walls in the lounge/dining area.

Peter is a talented photographer and he has been scouring the Hawkes Bay with his coordinator getting photos of landmarks for the CEO to choose from. Below is a photo of the photo on canvas that Peter gifted to us:

As promised in the last newsletter, Trudy has been trying out some Haiku poetry. Remember, 3 lines: first line 5 syllables, second line 7 syllables and last line 5 syllables. Here is a selection of some of the poems Trudy has created:

MY TEDDY BEAR:

My little teddy,
Is very soft and squidgy,
I love him A LOT!

TELEVISION:

T.V. is a bore,
Do I have to take much more?
But, what else to do?

UNDIES:

How much would you care,
If you had no underwear?
Your bum would be bare!

Friends just doing what friends do...

Friends

There's nothing like a nice hot chocolate from No. 5 Café and Larder after a good singing lesson and a game of golf.

Deena looks as pleased as punch with her yummy beverage, and getting a chocolate ring on her face is all part of the fun!!!

Taylor and Chris had fun out and about the shops in Hastings— a good opportunity to see what Halloween costumes were out there... and speaking of Halloween.....

HAWKES BAY SHOW 2016

As you can see some of our clients got quite tuckered out — it was great to have a sit-down at lunch time and have a nice cold drink.

The “cooking for blokes” class (pictured right) are saving up for a tasty chicken dish so this week they had a $3 budget and some leftover cheese and sour cream from the week before. They spent their $3 on bread, and a packet of onion soup to make toasties. The pantry got raided and they were able to make scones too. They really enjoyed their budget meal and check out the camaraderie! Very cool.
